

Free Phones, Here. [Part One.]

for The Fictional VolunTier Project

By Goura Fotadar

Date typed up: 111717

Date: 11.14.17

Criminology Review

; from the:

cited: Daily Post

[perhaps brief]

The story titled : "Gunman ... robs in her car downtown" on/from 11.13.17

At brief read:

it was unclear to me

if anything were actually robbed.

at a 2nd beginning read:

I discovered from the story; that at least a “cellphone” had been robbed. Beginning
here refers to location of text, ...

In any case,
the odd connotation is a “cellphone” being robbed: is a tad bizarre given the time: as in year; and location.

The Presumable why?

free phones
are provided
as a sign-up, service:
on specific days,
of the year in the Area; and have Almost most advanced Cell capabilities, for Free. Stealing a

Phone, at gun-point, then Seems criminally absurd;
For even a common Regular thief.

This of course out-dates
the crime; to when cell-phones could be valued to something Like an easily
sell-able diamond
bracelet; and in
The current notion of culture; this might have only been
starting out around the 2000s or so
locally.

[t/b/c]